INTRODUCTION

This should provide a clear statement of a problem, the relevant literature on the subject, and the proposed approach or solution. It should be understandable to colleagues from a broad range of scientific disciplines. All abbreviations should be avoided and if used, should be explained at least once.

MATERIALS AND METHOD

Previously described methods should be cited and not elaborately described. Details should be referred to literature cited. New approaches or methodology should receive great attention. Statistical methods of treatment should be mentioned if they have been used.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The results and discussion should be combined. The original and important findings should be stated. Results should be illustrated with figures or tables where necessary but these should be kept to the minimum. The discussion should highlight what is new by the paper. They study should be related to published articles in literature.

CONCLUSION

This should summarize the major findings/Observations alluding to the possible future possibilities

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

This should be presented at the end of text and before the references. Technical assistance and advice may be acknowledged. Acknowledgment of financial support can also be stated in this section.

REFERENCES

References should be listed in a separate sheet. Authors are responsible for the accuracy and the completeness of their references. References should be cited in the text by the last name of the author (both authors if only two: the first author and et al, when more than two) followed by the year. References should be listed alphabetically without numbering at the end of the text. If there is more than one reference in the same year for the same author(s) then please add the letters (a), (b), etc to the year, for example (Rahman et al, 2006a, 2006b). only published paper(s) or in press can be mentioned in the manuscript, References to journal articles, books, chapters in book. Theses etc should be listed as given below:
